fruchtman takes 10-year lease on movie; plans wide screen

Jack Fruchtman, owner of a chain of theaters and long-time Greenbelt resident, announced this week that he will take over the lease on the Greenbelt theater beginning July 1. In an exclusive interview with the News Review, Fruchtman and Abe Chasanow, attorney for the owner of the property, revealed the conclusion of negotiations to lease the theater for a ten year period. This marks the entry of the first private business into the commercial center in Greenbelt.

"Our first move," said Fruchtman in making the announcement, "will be to install a wide screen for CinemaScope productions." The wide screen will be in place by Sunday, and the first picture to play on it will be "Picnic." Eventually, he added, he will completely renovate and redecorate the theater. Fruchtman owns and operates eight theaters, including two first-run movie houses in downtown Baltimore, a total operation which grosses over a million and a half dollars a year.

7 Days A Week

The movie will operate seven days a week beginning at once, said Fruchtman, with matinees as often as possible. He plans a flexible approach to bookings, and indicated that special matinee features for children will not interfere with more adult theater fare for evening movie-goers. In addition, he plans to experiment with late shows, midnight movies, matinees for rainy days, foreign films, etc.

The Greenbelt theater is the first movie which Fruchtman managed. Coincidentally, he assumed management on July 1, 1940, exactly sixteen years ago, and remained in that post until 1946. In 1951, GCS again employed him to manage the theater operation, and he has continued to do so until now. Under his direction, a house staff headed by Leroy Root has been managing the theater on the premises, and this arrangement will be continued.

Higher Price

Under new ownership, prices may be raised slightly to 30 cents for children and 60 cents for adults, to bring them in line with competition in the area. But, says Fruchtman, there is no reason why Greengelters should "risk their lives on crowded roads" to go elsewhere for movies when the best in film entertainment will be available right here at home.

adult swimming saturday morn

Registration for adult swimming on Saturday mornings is still open, the recreation department announced this week. The fee is $2 for the season and the hours from 9 to 11 a.m. Designed as a "recreational swim", the program is offered to local residents who desire a swimming period free of youngsters.

Swimming instruction is available at no extra cost, it was also disclosed. Registration can take place any time during the season, and there is no limit on the number of Saturday mornings residents may attend.

After a decade and a half Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc. is going out of the theater business. The decision of the co-op's board of directors to give up operation of the Greenbelt theater was based, in part, on the fact that its lease for the theater expires September 30, 1956. Also, in part, the decision was based on decreasing attendance at the theater in recent years.

independence day parade program features car-burning

The order of march for Greenbelt's annual Independence Day parade was announced this week by the parade marshal, Sgt. Austin Green of the city police department. With participating units assembling at 10 a.m. at Ridge and Southway, the parade is scheduled to begin at 10:30. The line of march will be down Southway to Centerway to Crescent to the lake, and the reviewing stand will be on Crescent between Eastway and the filling station.

A meeting of the Greenbelt delegation to the Congress of Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc. will be held 8 p.m., Friday, June 29, in the GCS offices in Greenbelt. Election of officers will highlight the meeting. All members of the Co-op are invited to attend these meetings.

The Congress, an advisory group to the GCS board of directors, was approved by GCS members about two years ago as a method of improving communications between the membership and the Board.

By L. A. Lee

Greenbelt has some beautiful yards and flower gardens, according to the judges in the recent yard and flower garden contest sponsored by the Greenbelt Garden Club in conjunction with GVHC, who will supply each winner, honorable mention, and merit award with an 8 in. x 10 in. picture of his yard. The first place winners of each division, Old Greenbelt and New Greenbelt, will receive a color picture, all others black and white.

The judges were Carl Johnson, Andy Duncan and Hans Jorgensen. They had quite a problem deciding on the winners. They stated that the appearance of Greenbelt has improved considerably and that the majority of homes are improving the appearance of their property. It was noted that the best appearing landscaping of public buildings was the Community Church. The Garden Club is intending to have another contest later in the fall. Everyone take notice and govern your gardening activities accordingly.

The winners of the contest and judging on June 22 were as follows:

Old Greenbelt

First place: Merle F. Frady, 35-L Ridge; Second Place: George E. Schaffer, 58-G Crescent; Third Place: Mrs. Charles M. Cormack, 6-B Ridge.

gvhc board agrees to deposit $18,000 in local credit union

By Russell Greenbaum

A decision to deposit the first $18,000 land payment in the Greenbelt Credit Union as a means of making more loans available for purchasers of GVHC members' homes highlighted the Greenbelt Veteran Housing Corporation board of directors meeting on Friday, June 22.

Joe Comproni, representing the credit union, formally requested the GVHC board at the meeting to deposit funds in the credit union as a mutual benefit to both organizations. He reported that the credit union was now the principal local means of providing loans for the resale of GVHC homes and that the credit union had become more liberal in the amount of the loan granted. However, a sharp reduction in the number of loans would be necessary unless the credit union obtained more working capital.

Comproni said that the credit union had fared well in the large loans it had made for the purchase of homes by members when Greenbelt was purchased from the Government in 1952, and there has been little trouble from defaulters. As a means of safeguarding its funds on deposit, GVHC would be welcome to review the loans granted and to receive regular reports on the financial progress of the credit union.

The board was sympathetic to the credit union's request but pointed out that there was a rigidly worded by-law (Section 9) that prevented GVHC from using its funds for any type of an investment or speculative purpose whatsoever or deposit its money anywhere except insured banks, unless the approval of the membership was obtained. However, it was brought out that the members had already given their approval in principle to using the funds received from the sale of the vacant land to Warner-Kanter, Inc. to help finance the resale of members' homes.

Unanimous Approval

A specific plan had been approved at the annual meeting which permitted the land payments to be used for loans in the resale of homes in certain cases, but the board felt that the funds would be far more effectively used for that purpose if deposited with the credit union. The board, therefore voted unanimously, with only Director John Pharris absent, to deposit the first payment of $18,000 in the credit union as well as all future payments subject, however, to legal approval. The board also agreed informally to explore whether it should seek to deposit its regular funds in the credit union.

The board considered whether it should restrict its funds on deposit for use solely as loans to purchaser of GVHC members' homes but decided that this would needlessly hamper the operations of the credit union. It was agreed that the credit union would present a quarterly report to the board on its operations.

Another matter discussed at length was the zoning of the land in the area of Greenbelt slated for non-residential use. The question arose when GVHC Manager Paul Campbell reported that he had received apparent confirmation of a report from Director Bob Halpin that the triangle of Warner-Kanter land to be cut off by the Inter-County Belt Freeway was to be zoned industrial rather than commercial. Campbell said he understood that the original idea of a regional shopping center there was now considered undesirable because it would be completely surrounded by main arteries.

However, Director Frank Lastner, who is also a county commissioner, emphatically stated that no such change in zoning was under discussion and that he would vigorously oppose any such change if it were sought. He said that matters now stand Warner-Kanter has an application to zone the land as commercial. Campbell said he would check into this further.

More Industrial Zoning

Lastner went on to report that the entire area of land behind the Greenbelt Junior High School extending back to the B. & O. Railroad and over to the Belt Freeway right-of-way has been zoned industrial. Previously part of the land had been considered for residential use. Lastner said this would be light industry and that no plants would come in that would be a nuisance.

He further reported that at the request of Berwyn Heights a four-

a communication

There seems to be a good deal of misunderstanding about the GCS annual corporate meeting, wherein numerous proxies outvoted the members able to attend in person. The critics of this procedure seem to forget that the annual corporate meeting is only a legal formality intended by the By-laws to legally ratify the will of the membership as already ascertained at previous area annual meetings and Congress sessions. At area meetings proxy voting is negligible, full opportunity for discussion and criticism is available and utilized, and the area meetings elect representatives to a Congress where joint action may be taken and Board members chosen. Such a representative Congress is more truly the expression of the will of the entire membership than the annual corporate meeting could possibly be, for the annual meeting has to be held in some specific location where only a tiny minority of our widely scattered 9000 members could possibly attend. It is only by proxy voting that a small local minority can be prevented from taking control and overriding the wishes of the immense majority of the members in other areas.

The Board of Directors has been called "self-perpetuating." Obviously that is not a true characterization. A year ago two valuable members of the Board, candidates for re-election, were defeated. This year there were seven candidates for the Congress for nomination to the five vacancies on the Board. It happened that the policies of the present Board had so won the approval of the Congress, representing the entire membership, that all five Board members whose terms expired were re-nominated and re-elected. All five of them had been given votes of confidence in their areas by being elected to the Congress by a Hare system vote in meetings where proxies were very few.

The difficulty seems to be, as my friend Bruce Bowman put it in a recent issue of the News Review, that GCS has "left Greenbelt." Of course he did not mean that, for it would not be true, that GCS has physically left Greenbelt, for our main office is still here, and we are building a new store and a new gas station in order to continue to serve Greenbelt with ever increasing efficiency. But in a sense it is true that GCS has left Greenbelt; it has outgrown it, and while Greenbelt will always have a special place in its affection and interest as its mother town, it has made a start, with the acquisition of Westminster, toward becoming, not a Greenbelt, but a Maryland organization. Inevitably this expansion has proportionately reduced any specific Greenbelt influence on our management and policies. Since there are now about twice as many members outside Greenbelt as within it, control of GCS has indeed left Greenbelt.

This may be the reason why opposition to our expansion program has been aroused. But the membership has voted repeatedly in favor of expansion, and the Rochdale principles to which we have pledged allegiance require it. Furthermore, increasingly severe competition demands a much larger volume than we have yet reached, so that we may buy more in car-load lots, may advertise more economically and effectively and may reduce our overhead percentage. We expand for two reasons: to bring the benefits of the co-operative method to more people, and to serve more efficiently our present members.

The Directors are very happy that in all three area meetings, after fullest discussion and criticism, overwhelming endorsement was given to the policies and personnel of the present Board.

teen-ager lament

"The teen-agers of this town are turning into juvenile delinquents—always hanging around the center looking for trouble!" How often have we heard that one! What else can be expected?

During the summer months of July and August, the Drop-Inn is scheduled to be closed. This includes both skating and the monthly dances. This leaves us with next to nothing to do. In the summer months when teen-agers have more free time and are not involved in school affairs, we naturally want some forms of entertainment.

"Why can't we stay home once in a while?" That's another line we often hear. We don't mind staying home but after our work is done, we want some place to go just as you do—instead of "hanging around the center looking for trouble."

We enjoyed the skating during the winter, so why close it down now?

At this rate, Greenbelt will soon be a ghost town—as far as we're concerned!

meyer passow new jcc rabbi

By Rhea G. Kahn

The Jewish Community Center of Prince Georges County (Greenbelt's own) now has a rabbi, Meyer Passow, who expects to assume his duties here in time for the Jewish High Holy Days early in September. Employed full-time as Director of the Department of Israel Affairs of the B'nai Brith organization, Rabbi Passow will live in Greenbelt.

Of major importance among Rabbi Passows plans, in addition to conducting sabbath services and fulfilling the other regular rabbinical responsibilities, is the development of an adult education course in Jewish customs and religion.

Rabbi Passow is a graduate of the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York City. He was ordained a rabbi in 1940, holds the degree of Master of Hebrew Literature, and is now working toward the degree of Doctor of Hebrew Literature at the Institute. Born in New York city in 1915, he received his A.B. degree from the College of the City of New York.

Rabbi Passow has been active in Jewish organizational work. He was executive secretary of the Synagogue Council of America and a field director for the Zionist Organization of America before coming to B'nai Brith last April. He led a congregation in New York city for two and a half years, 1940-43, and has lectured extensively in this country and Canada for B'nai Brith, the Zionist Organization, and professional speakers' bureaus. In connection with his work he has made many trips to Israel.

He is married and has a son, Eliezer, aged 16, and a daughter, Ahuva, aged 9. His wife, Clara, has been instructor in a Hebrew School and a radio commentator on Jewish subjects, both in New York.

"We now look forward to the development of a well-rounded religious, cultural, and educational program," stated JCC president Nathan Shinderman last week "Only by virtue of the fortunate circumstances that his full-time employment brings him to Washington have we been able to obtain the services of such an eminently qualified person as Rabbi Passow."

library news

By Mary Kenan Hadley

The Federal Library Services Bill passed the U.S. Senate, June 6, and has been sent to the White House for signing. The purpose of this bill is to promote the further extension and development of public library service in communities of 10,000 population or less.

Each state will receive an allotment which it will match on the basis of its per capita income as compared with the nation per capita income. If the bill becomes law, Maryland will receive the maximum allotted to it under the law, which is $110,164 each year for 5 years, July 1, 1957 to June 30, 1962. This money will be used under a plan to be prepared and administered by the Division of Library Extension of the Maryland State Department of Education to demonstrate good public library service in rural areas without libraries and in areas where the existing library service is not adequate. The Maryland Library Association believes that the people of Maryland will urge sufficient State and local support for public library services when they appreciate the informational and cultural values which this program will show. It believes that libraries in rural areas are equally as important as those in the cities.

the long view

By Al Long

I'd like to pin an orchid on George Panagoulis, our very capable county Chief of Police, for the admirable way he has handled himself in that tough job.

To be perfectly honest and frank, I must admit I had my doubts when his appointment was first announced. Being chief of police in Greenbelt was one thing, but the county job is big league stuff. I was all ready to deny him if and, as I expected then, when he pulled his big boner. When asked if I knew him, I was going to say, "How should I know him? I live in Green Valley, not Greenbelt!" But then I shouldn't be surprised that he is doing so well. After all, if you can get along in Greenbelt, you can get along anywhere. We may not be as big or have as many, but we sure have the most-est in the smallest concentrated form—and that's true whether it's people, crackpots, trouble or what have you.

As a matter of fact, Greenbelt can be very proud of both Chief Panagoulis and Commissioner Frank Lastner. It wasn't so many years ago that Greenbelt was only a wart on the county's nose; an irritating wart at that. But now, thanks to Frank Lastner, we are an important and respected part of the county. So, an orchid to both Frank and George.

That's what plays heck with my budget. I started out to give an orchid to George and I end up giving one to George and one to Frank—but after all an orchid is as cheap as a traffic ticket. "Now, how about that ticket I got, George?" (Honestly, I haven't got a ticket and I haven't got any real orchids, all I really got is a lot of crab grass—and a new business.)

This going into business
Is not all beer and skittles.
In fact it's almost madness
Thus to earn the family's vittles.

But I'll tell you more about it
When a month or so has past
In the meanwhile who can doubt it
That my friends are all agast?

new zoning in town

According to city manager Charles McDonald the Prince Georges County Commissioners, this week acted favorably on a petition of the Pollin interests to zone the tract adjacent the Junior High School as C-1 (commercial). This action completes the zoning of a tract of 240 acres fronting on Edmondston road, and extending to the proposed intersection of the new Beltway. (See GVHC story p. 1)

Although the city council had asked the commissioners to defer action on zoning petitions until completion of its "Master Plan" (now virtually completed), the commissioners went along with the council's chief objection — the matter of a buffer strip. An area between the industrial site and the school property was left unzoned.

Another zoning petition which the commissioners acted upon, was the zoning commercial (C-1, C-2) of the controversial corner opposite the Junior High School. This tract has been under dispute as to its incorporation -- whether or not Greenbelt should relinquish its rightful claim to the city of Berwyn Heights, due to its geographical location. It appears unlikely that Greenbelt will accede to the petition of the Berwyn Heights solons.

McDonald indicated his belief that this zoning move was for the purpose of furthering plans for a proposed shopping center.

library friends group formed

Plans for forming Greenbelt's newest organization, the Friends of the Greenbelt Library, were discussed at a preliminary organizational meeting last week.

The purpose of the organization is to obtain support for the local library, promote its use by local residents, and improve its facilities. Long-range plans include a drive to obtain a new location for the library preferably in the shopping center, according to Mrs. Marianna Schmidt, temporary chairman of the organization.

Other plans include setting up a story hour for youngsters, possibly beginning this summer if qualified volunteers can be obtained from local residents. Action has already been taken by the group to obtain a sign to advertise the location of the library, which is now in a room of the community building (Center School).

Another meeting of the Friends of the Greenbelt Library will be held on July 17 at the library. Those wishing further information may call Mrs. Schmidt at GR 3-5617.

Councilmen Robert Hurst, James Smith, and city manager McDonald have stated their intention to attend the convention of the Maryland Municipal League, which is to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Ocean City.

Chuck Clark, co-captain of the Co-op Drug Store team, pitched his nine into first place in the Babe Ruth League of Greenbelt with a stunning two-hit 3-2 victory over Neil Vaughn and his Variety Store Monday morning. Centerfielder Johnny Wilson got both hits off Clark.

Franny Day held Food Store to 6 hits as Drug Store coasted to an easy 24-4 win on June 19. Firstbaseman Eddie Brooks with 3 for 3 and Day with a double and single in 5 tries were the Drugmen's top hitters. Catcher Nolan Miller reached Day for 3 safe ties in 3 tries to top Supermarkets hitters.

Co-op Food Store and Variety Store nines were rained out the morning of June 21. The Foodmen were ahead by 4-3 in two innings of play when the rain came. This game will be replayed at 10 o'clock the morning of July 2.

Captain Tom Iveson bested Ellis Byers and Bob McGlothlin last Friday morning to spark Drug's 7-4 win over Service Station. Billy Steele and Earl Doss banged out 2 hits apiece to pace the Mortar and Pestle crew. McGlothlin collected half his team's four hits.

Bobby Stone was the winning pitcher but he needed Dave Goldfaden's nifty two inning relief job as Supermarket bested the luckless Service Station, 6-5 Tuesday morning. Bernie Emmert took over the hill chore for Roy McCauley in the third inning and suffered the loss when Supermarket tagged him for a big 5 run rally in the fifth frame. Les Billings smacked a long run producing triple and Dave Goldfaden got a two run double to pace their teams at bat. Leftfielder Duncan Munro made the best play of the season.
